Preliminary work for the grand street fair and carnival, to be held May 4 to 10, is progressing admirably. The big arch across Lafayette Street, in front of the Capitol, is in Jourse of construction. The management announces that a couple has been found who consents to be the principals in a big public wedding on the carnival platform, which is to be one of the features of the festivities. The couple will come from Henderson, but the names of the couple are not given out for publication. There is every indication of a very large patronage for the carnival if the weather conditions are at all favorable.

WARRENTON, VA., April 18 .- The annual races of the Warrenton Hunt Club took place this afternoon and marked the close of the hunting season here, after the persistent inclemency of the weather during the past week. for let-up was slow in arriving, yet doubly appreciated when it did come. From an eminence on the Barry farm the whole dive-mile course, was plainly visible, an arduous stretch, dotted with stone walls, post and rail fences and broad ditches. Heavy and light weight hunters champed their bits impatiently, awaiting with almost human interest the greatest test of, their speed and durability. The hill-side was a mass of color, and a noisy human arose from the large crowd of spectators assembled there. Occasionally big coaches would rumble up and blasts from their horns go echolog through the surrounding hills. The sight was an inspiring one. The horses and riders and the picturesque country all combined to make it so.

Although the entries were not especially numerous this year, the excitement was intense as the first squad of horses lined up for, their great trial of speed and jumping ability. In the light weight hunter class there were four entries. The race was an unusually speedy one. Leo Evans won this race on Maddux's horse, "Billy Bowlegs." "Lone Jack," ridden by J. H. Carter, came in a close second. Dundas, on "Sister Laura," was third. In the heavy weight hunters' race there were only three entries. It was anything but speedy, Ambrose Clarke won on "Flint Hill." Julian Kelth came in second on "Fairfield."

The farmers' race was a very spirted

ond. The winner received a ver cup, presented by Westmoreland Davis, of Tuxedo, N. Y., entertained a large and fashionable number of guests at a hunt tea Friday at 4 P. M., the afternoon preceding the races. First there was a brisk chase after the hounds and finally a return to the Davis residence, where a lavish entertainment and good cheer awaited every one. Pink coats were visible everywhere—on the stairs, in the hall and in the drawing rooms. As the wins flowed the crowd waxed merry, and it was not long ere clinking spurs were keeping time to a very delightful orchestra. Cake-walks, hunting songs and responses to numerous teasts followed in rapid order. A hush spread over those assembled as Mr. Davis stepped forward and proposed a toast to the master of hounds, Mr. F. A. B. Portman. After every one had finished singing "A Jolly Good Fellow," Mr. Portman responded in a manner well befitting a sportsman. There were numerous excellent voices in the throng, who gladly chimed in and helped to sing that old yet catchy hallad, "We Will All Go Hunting To-Day,"
